1:50 000 Scale Geological Maps

1:50 000 Scale Geological Maps

Geological maps show the nature, extent and relative stratigraphical age of the different rocks within a district. For England and Wales (and Northern Ireland), map sheets normally cover an area 30 km east-west and 20 km north-south; in Scotland, there coverage is 20 km east-west and 30 km north-south. The 1:50 000 geological map grids are based on an early Ordnance Survey 1:63 360 scale map (one inch to one mile) grid, and are not related to the current OS 1:50 000 map sheets. 'Special' geological sheets are produced for areas of major geological interest which are covered by more than one 'normal' map sheet, provide a composite map of the district and may be available in different versions.

'Provisional' maps, which may include substantial but not complete revision of the geology; are indicated by [P] and are recognised by the integral yellow cover.

'Facsimile' editions which are 1:50 000 scale reprints of earlier 1:63 360 scale maps are indicated by 'F' after the original and facsimile dates. One inch to one mile scale maps (1:63 360) are still the current editions for numerous areas, and are indicated in the list by the symbol '#' following the publication date. Copies of out-of-print sheets can often be reproduced as print-on-demand maps; contact the Sales Desk on 0115 936 3241 for prices and availability.

Most maps are available flat or folded; except for Provisional maps, all 1:50 000 maps have a card cover.

The availability of a Geological Memoir, Sheet Explanation or Sheet Description (see page 40) to accompany individual geological maps is indicated by the symbol (M), (SE) or (SD) as appropriate.

Map version classifications

In the past, our geological maps have been published in different editions, for example Solid (S), Drift (D), Solid & Drift (S&D) and Solid with Drift (SwD); although not all editions have been available for any one district. Beginning in 2004, most newly published maps will be classified as Bedrock (replacing Solid), Superficial Deposits (replacing Drift), and the combined map as Bedrock & Superficial Deposits (replacing Solid & Drift). Until this replacement is complete, all the existing maps will be available in their current versions.

Bedrock (B) (formerly 'Solid') show the pre-Quaternary geology, as it would appear if the superficial deposits were removed. Superficial deposits may be omitted or shown only by pecked lines.

Superficial Deposits (Sup) (formerly 'Drift') show the Quaternary geology, usually unconsolidated deposits that include glacial and postglacial deposits; artificial deposits, such as landscaped, worked and made ground are also shown.

Bedrock & Superficial Deposits (B&Sup) (formerly 'Solid & Drift') show the bedrock and superficial deposits with equal emphasis. These maps give the best picture of the 'underfoot' geology. Geological lines and symbols for the surface outcrops of both bedrock and superficial deposits are shown, but details of bedrock geology are normally abridged.

There will be no new equivalent to the earlier Solid with Drift (SwD) classification; these maps show the solid and drift geology, but the drift deposits are uncoloured or only have coloured outlines. The (buried) geological boundaries of the solid deposits occurring beneath the drift are shown in full.

Combined maps: for some areas two versions of the geology may be portrayed as separate map panels on the same map face. These editions may be any of the map versions described above. Combined maps are indicated in the form (B,B&Sup) or (S,D), as appropriate.

Coastal geology maps: this subseries shows the geology of near-shore areas, usually together with the adjacent onshore geology. For these maps the bedrock and superficial formations occurring offshore are currently classified as either Quaternary or Pre-Quaternary.

Digital geological maps: Many 1:50 000 scale maps are available in digital formats suitable for printed output or for use within Geographical Information Systems. For further details on digital products and services see page 68.

1:50 000 series maps for Scotland, England and Wales are £11 each.
Northern Ireland sheets are £5 each.

Encapsulation service: 1:50 000 maps can be encapsulated to order. The cost, including VAT, is £22.27; please contact the Sales Desk for further details.

1:50 000 Coastal Geology (England & Wales)

These maps show the geology of selected near-shore, estuarine or offshore areas, defined as Quaternary or pre-Quaternary strata and deposits. All maps include information on the onshore geology although for some areas this may only be an outline of the geology which is normally published on other 1:50 000 Series Geological Maps.

Digital Reprints of early 'One-inch' Geological Maps

For some districts, 'modern' geological maps are out of print or have not been published. Digital reprints of earlier geological maps — some dating from the 19th Century — are available. These maps provide a contemporary indication of the geology of the district, but do not incorporate any more recent geological information or re-interpretations. These maps are reproduced at their original 1:63 360 scale. For other areas, not listed below, where modern maps are unavailable, digital reprints may be produced to order at a cost of £15 each. All maps are produced in flat format as high quality, high permanence, inkjet prints.

The following digital reprints are available for parts of England.
